

BAIRD KISER.

Buckeye Youngster Scores Twice Over the Champion Cyclist.

AT MANHATTAN BEACH.

Quill Club Wheelmen's Meet Attended by an Enthusiastic Crowd.

BANNER FOR COLUMBIA BOYS.

Irwin Powell Gives Proof That He is the Fastest Amateur in the Country—He and Dawson Land the Tandem Race.

Earl Kiser had more speed than Champion Bald yesterday afternoon at Manhattan Beach, and the sturdy Buckeye youngster scored over the Biscay in both the professional and amateur races. In the opening meet of the season conducted by the Quill Club wheelmen before several thousand well pleased and enthusiastic spectators.

Not long since Kiser launched a challenge to the winner of the proposed Bald-Cooper series, and there were many who regarded the act as a mere piece of advertising devised by the irrepressible, persistent and experienced Tom Eck, who, owing to a failure to adjust to the satisfaction of the A. A. W. Racing Board, the much discussed non-appearance of John S. Johnson at Portland, Me., was obliged yesterday to observe the successful doings of his new star from the grand stand.

When Kiser captured the half-mile handicap from the back mark, and Bald had to be content with a second place, the result still left room for doubt, as the winner enjoyed a bit of a sleigh ride on the other's wheel, and then got away from him in the sprint. In the final of the mile open, the race of the meet, Kiser's team mate Mertens, figured somewhat, but had he not possessed a better sprint than all the cash prize artists who opposed him, the Ohio boy would not have been first across the line. Bald is hardly at his best, and he requires more training before he will be really ready for the races. He rode a half mile exhibition in 55 seconds, paced by the "Black and White" tandem pair, and received the ovation due any champion.

Banner for Columbia Boys.
The cracks of Columbia University won by a considerable margin the banner offered to the club or association whose representatives rolled up the most points. Irwin A. Powell gave proof that he is the fastest amateur in the metropolitan or any other district. He took the mile in convincing style, ran second from scratch in the handicap, and, in company with Ray Dawson, landed the tandem event. Fearless finished strongly, following his companion home in the mile. Bird was first in a heat of the same race, but through careless riding in forcing a rival up the bank suffered disqualification. Not even the novice race escaped the wearers of the blue and white, and a promising youngster was shipped in William Henry Hayes, who won out in a rattling dash, five riders running within inches of each other.

Intensely attracted to the two-mile struggle, one for professionals and the other for amateurs. The professional contest brought out a field of crack-jacks that contained every likely quality now in the game, except from Cooper, who gave the Quill meet the go by. Ingraham was placed in the final as pacesetter, and, though he may not have intended to be of particular assistance to McFarland, a team mate, his actions gave that impression. At any rate, Mertens, who was expected to lead, was not a good plan to have the pace much faster, and, so, early in the second lap, he came up from behind, and nothing was there to prevent him from shouldering back. When the line had reformed, the order was: Mertens, Kiser, McFarland, Kennedy and Bald, with Hadfield taking the lead, and the original pacesetter out of the game.

Bald's Effort Came Too Late.
On the final lap Mertens pulled out, leaving Kiser at the head of the line, and that rider immediately set sail around into the straight, with McFarland at the wheel. The third lap Kiser was front, and Bald came up from the tail of the procession with a big rush, followed by Hadfield. The effort came too late. Bald was not a good plan to have the pace much faster, and, so, early in the second lap, he came up from behind, and nothing was there to prevent him from shouldering back. When the line had reformed, the order was: Mertens, Kiser, McFarland, Kennedy and Bald, with Hadfield taking the lead, and the original pacesetter out of the game.

In the final of the amateur mile Schofield filled the role of pacesetter. Krumm beat out the others for the coveted rear wheel, with Powell and Dawson next, and Roome, Ripley, Fearling and Ladue comprising the balance of the field. When the bell rang for the third lap Roome was front, and he rode around into the backstretch, with Fearling following. Young Krumm here made a jump and a substantial lead, and, coming into the home stretch the bunch closed in on him and he was lost to view. Powell made his effort during the last quarter, and, moving around the field on the outside, gradually forged to the front, but did not really ride until the last fifty yards, when he came from the rear wheel to the front, and won by a margin of a few feet. Fearling was the second man and Bert Ripley and Dawson were the other prize winners.

A pleasing feature of the meet was the debut of a young trick rider, Willis Hayes, who captured the crowd by his artistic work. Among the notables who graced the occasion were President Isaac B. Potter, of the L. A. W., Spencer T. Williams, Boston, president of the Maiden Bicycle Club; L. E. Adams, president of the famous Spaulding Field (Mass.) Bicycle Club; State Senator George Capron, New Bedford, Mass., and his decided to have another tussle at the game.

An unusually competent corps of officials was in the saddle in the long race. Albert Mott, chairman of the list, and other League lights who served with him were also in the saddle. The National Board: Messrs. Wilson and Pitman, of the State Board; Handicapper Percival, of New England; Secretary-Treasurer Bull, of the New York State Bicycle Association; and Consul Gentle, of the New Jersey Division. Clerk of the Course Wilson never allowed anything to lag, and with the help of Bert and Stoddard did the most satisfactory clerking at a local meet in many a day.
